

A trip to Cheung Chau

Sunny

16th April ,2023 Sunday

Today, I went to Cheung Chau Island to celebrate Bun Festival with my family. I was excited.

Today, my parents and I woke up early and went to Cheung Chau by ferry. When we arrived, the island was crowded. First, my parents bought me to visit Pak Tai Temple. It was traditional. Will meet wishes to the God of the sea. There were a lot of people there to make wishes as well.

Then, we were walking on the street. We saw the parade. There were a lot of children standing on pole. They wore colorful costumes, and they look just like their traditional character in the stories.

At night, we went to see the bun towers. It was the highlight. People left that eating the buns with a Chinese word means lucky on Israel break. Good luck to them. I tried it one and it was delicious. And I hope it's bring good luck to me.

Finally, we watched the Bun Grabbing Competition.

The people climbed the bun towers and tried to grab the buns on the top with higher marks. It was the most exciting competition. I have ever seen. When the time was out, they stopped and counted the marks.

I have an unforgettable experience today. I was happy to see the Buns Grabbling Competition. I hope I can go to the Buns Festival on the future.
